

Loterie Nationale Case Study

Protecting your world

Project Overview

Chubb has worked with the Belgian National Lottery, or Loterie Nationale, on many projects over the last 35 years and has consistently provided with innovative and high-quality security solutions for its changing needs over this period.

The Belgian National Lottery organizes public lotteries, games and other contests and makes sure it provides a reliable service for all its customers. The proceeds from the lottery are directed back to the community in the form of grants and sponsorships. Every year the Belgian National Lottery reinvests 320,3 billion euro into causes such as scientific research, cultural heritage, social inclusion and sports.

The organisation was founded in 1934 and has offices, warehouses and stores across Belgium's cities.

Customer Needs

- Separate systems for intruder alarms, video cameras and access control
- A solution across over 15 sites in cities including Antwerp, Brussels, Liège and Gent
- A centralised control system to monitor for security breaches at any of the sites

Solution and Benefits

National Lottery Head Office

Chubb's Belgium team has a long-standing relationship with Loterie Nationale and provides a flexible and collaborative security solution duplicated across multiple sites.

We provide access control, intruder alarms and surveillance cameras across 15 sites, which will soon be expanded to four more locations selling tickets for the lottery.

Chubb provides dedicated security personnel for a number of the sites to ensure customer safety and also the use of its centralised control platform to monitor and access developing situations, which enables Loterie Nationale to call upon Chubb's vast experience on an ongoing basis.

Customer Feedback

The Facilities Coordination Manager at Loterie Nationale, said: "We have been working with Chubb for a long time and have always been delighted with the service, advice and counsel they have offered for our vital security solutions. We look forward to continuing to work alongside them to ensure the security of our employees and customers across Belgium."
